DETAILED ACTION

Continued Examination Under 37 CFR 1.114

1. A request for continued examination under 37 CFR 1.114, including the fee set forth in 37 CFR 1.17(e), was filed in this application after final rejection. Since this application is eligible for continued examination under 37 CFR 1.114, and the fee set forth in 37 CFR 1.17(e) has been timely paid, the finality of the previous Office action has been withdrawn pursuant to 37 CFR 1.114. Applicant's submission filed on 12/11/2003 has been entered.

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 103

2. The following is a quotation of 35 U.S.C. 103(a) which forms the basis for all obviousness rejections set forth in this Office action:

(a) A patent may not be obtained though the invention is not identically disclosed or described as set forth in section 102 of this title, if the differences between the subject matter sought to be patented and the prior art are such that the subject matter as a whole would have been obvious at the time the invention was made to a person having ordinary skill in the art to which said subject matter pertains. Patentability shall not be negated by the manner in which the invention was made.

3. Claims 30-34 and 39-41 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 103(a) as being unpatentable over Jacobs in the publication "Algorithm for Optimal Linear Model-Based Control with Application to Pharmacokinetic Model-Driven Drug Delivery", IEEE Transactions on Biomedical Engineering, IEE, INC., New York, U.S.A., Vol. 37, NO.1, January 1990, pages 107-109 in view of Jacklitsch et al in publication "A Model-Based Self-Adjusting Two-Phase Controller for Vecuronium-Induced Muscle Relaxation During Anesthesia", IEEE Transactions on Biomedical Engineering, IEEE, INC, New York, U.S.A., Vol. 34, NO. 8, August 1987, pages 583-584.

Art Unit: 3761

Jacobs teaches an anesthetic control system comprising: a patient model; means for delivering the active substance at a present delivery rate; means for continuously communicating the present delivery rate to the patient model to calculate a present active substance concentration; control means for generating a control signal dependent upon the present active substance concentration and a desired active substance concentration; and means for controlling the delivery means to attain a delivery rate toward achieving the desired active substance concentration (see page 107, section "Model-Driven Drug Delivery"); wherein the former values of the active substance supplied to the patient's body include prior active substances; wherein the target value is adjusted/maintained; means for computing the target value dependent upon the patient.

Jacobs is silent with regards to the patient model created from former values of an active substance previously delivered to other patients.

Jacklitsch teaches an anesthetic controller using a patient model created from former values of an active substance previously delivered to other patients (Page 583, Chapter II).

Therefore, it would have been obvious to one of ordinary skill in the art at the time the invention was made to use a patient model created from former values of an active substance previously delivered to other patients in the system of Jacobs because it is known in the art to use a patient model based on a sample population, as taught by Jacklitsch.

Allowable Subject Matter

4. Claims 35-38 and 42-50 are objected to as being dependent upon a rejected base claim, but would be allowable if rewritten in independent form including all of the limitations of the base claim and any intervening claims.

Response to Arguments

5. Applicant's arguments with respect to claims 30-50 have been considered but are moot in view of the new ground(s) of rejection.
